Over the next few weeks, Covid safety messaging relating to contact registers will be broadcast over Aboriginal radio networks. The messages are spoken in Kriol, Martu, Ngaanyatjarra and plain English. The script is simple –

'There's a new corona rule to keep everyone safe. When you go to some places, you need to give your name and a phone number. This is for everyone over 16. Health mob will ring you if someone with corona has been in the same place as you. This is for places like: pub or eating place, sports place, pool, church, art or culture centre, community hall. Remember the phone number for when you go out.'

Copies of the audio recordings can be obtained from PHEOC@health.wa.gov.au.
